our story

Nestled in the foothills of the Smoky Mountains there's a small green barn on a small family farm. In it, beautiful things are being made – sustainably, with human hands and often from local wood.

We're MountainMakers — an artisan woodworks located in Townsend, Tennessee.

meet the maker

Rod Molina, Founder of Mountain Makers
TN | USA

Rod Molina is the principal craftsman at MountainMakers. Born in the Philippines, Rod is a 1st generation American that built a successful media and marketing firm in South Florida before moving to the Smoky Mountains to pursue his passion for woodcraft. Drawing inspiration from artists like George Nakashima, Sam Maloof, and Wharton Esherick and wabi sabi aesthetic philosophy, Rod focuses on slow-build processes and allowing material to define form, ensuring each piece he creates is a long-lasting, one-of-a-kind testament to the wood from which it's made.

A collection of handcrafted wooden spoons of various sizes and shapes, arranged on a dark, textured wooden surface. The spoons are made of light-colored wood and have smooth, rounded bowls. Some have long handles, while others are shorter. The background is a close-up of the wood grain, showing natural textures and colors. A semi-transparent teal circle is overlaid in the center, containing the word "handcrafting" in white, lowercase, sans-serif font.
